A unique precedent

The Falkirk System and chosen technology (Ultra Sound & Fibre Optic) use have been honed to interface with astute processes to define the optimal animal. The paradigm for profit.

Over a 23 year period Falkirk has understood, created and implemented the principle of EPIGENETICS for livestock selection, to an art form. It has no peer.

EPIGENETICS is the expression of genetic traits through the measured physical constitution and skeletal dimension of an animal as determined by the interaction of its genetic constitution and the environment.

"Not one man in a thousand has the accuracy of eye and judgment sufficient to become an eminent breeder.

Indomitable patience, the finest powers of discrimination, and sound judgment, must be exercised during many years.

A clearly predetermined object must be kept steadily in view.

Few men are endowed with all these qualities, especially that of discriminating very slight differences; judgment can only be acquired by long experience.

If any of these qualities be wanting, the labour of life may be thrown away."

Charles Darwin.
